7. DESCRIPTION

The Youngbauer House located at 721 Dunkirk Road is a detached 1½ story frame dwelling on a poured concrete foundation with an irregular floor plan. The house is situated on a single lot (50 feet wide and 125 feet deep) on the southern side of Dunkirk Road in the residential, single family community known as "Anneslie". It is currently sheathed with aluminum siding, but retains its original asymmetrical massing, fenestration and limited decorative details. It has an asymmetrical roof with two cross gables and shed dormers along a steep gable with overhanging eaves. The roof covering is asphalt shingles. All of the windows are original 6/6 and swing-out design with one exception. The original exterior was wood shake shingles. There have been no major additions to the original dwelling since it was built in 1932. The only new addition was a wood frame deck located in the southeastern portion of the rear of the property.

The main facade (north) is four bays wide on the first floor and two bays wide on the second floor. The most predominant feature is the off centered rectangular two panel solid wood colonial revival entrance with limited decorative details. The door is reached from an open stone stoop with three risers. The entrance bay projects approximately four feet from the front plane of the dwelling. The northeast portion of the upper level is created on dormer and cross gable with a 6/6 in each section. Most of the windows are 6/6.

The western facade is three bays wide on the first level with a single window in the gable. The low concrete foundation contains the original cast iron coal chute. The rear portion contains an original vent from the kitchen and an outside bulkhead cellar entrance.

The southern or rear facade is three bays wide. The most predominant feature is an original wood porch with six risers and lattice fencing under the steps.

The eastern facade is two bays wide. The foundation level contains three windows, containing original decorative metal screens (series of squares and curves).

The interior of the structure contains much of its original open plan design with limited decorative details. The first floor contains a foyer, living room, dining room, kitchen, two bedrooms and full bath. The structure has wood floors, two panel solid wood doors and plaster walls throughout. The entrance to the interior has a small foyer with a closet on the left. The foyer opens into a living room in the northwest portion of the house. The living room is the largest room on the first floor and contains a brick fireplace with a flat wood mantel along the south wall. It has an interior chimney. The living room is considered an extended room which is why there are six bay openings. The bays are located in an irregular pattern in this area. The foyer area still contains an original overhead metal star shaped light fixture. To the left of the foyer there is a phone closet which is still used for the placement of a telephone. The area directly in front of the stairs to the second floor is the original laundry chute to the basement. The dining room, kitchen and pantry are located in the southwestern section and contain no decorative details. The eastern section of the first floor is entered into from the dining room and leads to two bedrooms and a full bath.

The second floor landing is located near the full bathroom on the first floor. The second floor contains hardwood floors, two panel solid wood hardwood doors and plaster walls. It retains its original configuration of two bedrooms of different sizes and a half bath. These rooms are entered from a center hallway. One bedroom contains three windows and the other bedroom contains two windows. The bathroom contains a casement window. There is an overhead star shaped metal light fixture near the stairs.

The attic is entered through a scuttle door located in the hallway of the second floor. The attic area is unfinished storage space.

The basement is a full, unfinished open area with concrete floor and wood joist ceilings. The basement retains its original configuration and is used for storage and the mechanical equipment.

The rear of the site contains the original one car, frame garage with a double wood door. There is one bay on each side of this aluminum sided garage.

8. SIGNIFICANCE

The Youngbauer property (tax map 80, grid 2, parcel 107, Lots 21 and 22) was one of the early 20th century bungalow dwellings designed for the working class in Baltimore County. The dwelling is a fine, well proportioned example of a colonial bungalow. The house is not as rich in ornament as some other similar dwellings, but it remains in average condition and has not been significantly altered. The community of "Anneslie" is located north of Baltimore City on York Road between Walker and Regester Avenues. At one time, this community was part of a continuous line of estates along York Road from Waverly to Towson. In the heart of "Anneslie" stood the old Birkhead residence which was one of the old Maryland estates. "Anneslie" was developed in June, 1922 and was the first residential development north of the Baltimore City/County line. The original dwellings in this community were various designs of bungalows with no houses built on a lot less than 50 feet wide. Construction of dwellings began in approximately 1922 with a mixture of stucco and frame construction. The popular housing designs included influences of Italy, American Colonial, New England and California which was illustrated in a sales brochure published by Charles H. Steffy in 1929. By 1929, approximately 160 houses were built in this community. Due to the convenient location, transportation line on York Road into the city, mixture of schools and colleges and tree lined streets, "Anneslie" became one of the most desirable residential subdivisions in the Baltimore area. According to records researched, there has been no well known individuals or events occurring in this property.

Due to the length of ownership by the Youngbauer family which was 44 years (1948 to 1992), the property was generally known as the "Youngbauer House". The following is a brief chain of title on this property:

- * On June 26, 1992, William G. Lincoln and Margaret Pitt, personal representatives of the estate of Elsie R. Youngbauer, granted the fee simple title to James M. and Amy B. Thierer for the consideration of $135,000. The recording is Liber 9286, Folio 570. Elsie R. Youngbauer died on January 27, 1992.
- * On February 17, 1948, Rose B. Simpson (formerly known as Rose B. Katzenstein) granted the leasehold estate to Joseph H. and Elsie R. Youngbauer for the nominal consideration of $5.00. The annual ground rent was $84.00 and the recording was Liber 1649, Folio 195. Joseph H. Youngbauer died on March 27, 1981.

It was difficult to trace title after the above date, but I did find a legal reference (Liber 616, Folio 467) which conveyed the property from Charles W. Mulligan to Lennox Birckhead on May 23, 1922. Apparently, Mr. Birckhead later conveyed the property to Charles H. Steffey.
